

River Valley Church Counselor Referral List

The following is a list of recommended professional Christian counselors in our community who have been interviewed by the Care Pastors about the ways in which their Biblically-founded perspectives and growing personal relationships with the Lord interweave with their professional expertise and therapeutic methods. While we support the work that each of these counselors are doing to bring health, internal peace, and restoration to our communities, we would like to remind you that an effective counseling relationship is dependent upon your level of trust and ease of communication with your counselor. In order to smoothly develop a safe space for healthy vulnerability in counseling sessions, we encourage you to contact two or three potential counselors and use the guidelines below to guide your search for the best match.

Before contacting any counselor, we also advise you to check with your insurance provider to find out if they cover counseling or other mental healthcare. Be sure to obtain the full details of what types of services are covered. Ask about which centers are in your company's network, and whether your coverage changes at all if you see an out-of-network provider.

Guidelines for Choosing a Counselor

Here are some questions that we recommend asking as you are looking for a counselor:

- Where and how have you been educated and professionally trained in mental healthcare?
- What is your licensure status?
 - There are four types of mental healthcare licensure in MN:
 - Licensed Psychologist (LP)
 - Licensed Marriage and Family Therapist (LMFT)
 - Licensed Independent Clinical Social Worker (LICSW)
 - Licensed Professional Clinical Counselor (LPCC)
 - There is also a fifth type of license, specifically related to counseling individuals who struggle with substance misuse and abuse: Licensed Alcohol and Drug Counselor (LADC). If you would like to work with someone regarding these particular concerns, it is best to find a counselor who has both LADC and LP, LMFT, LICSW or LPCC credentials.
 - You may also see a Licensed Professional Counselor (LPC); these professionals have obtained a degree and performed 2000 supervised practice hours, but are still accruing further supervised practice hours before they can earn LPCC licensure (requires 4000 supervised practice hours). Be aware that insurance will not reimburse services from an LPC. For more information, visit <https://mn.gov/boards/behavioral-health/>

- Licensure and education are not an absolute guarantee of how effective your sessions will be, but are a significant indicator of the range and depth of experience that a counselor has acquired.
- What are your areas of specialty, or that you are personally most passionate about?
- Without disclosing specifics of clients' personal information, can you describe how you might apply your experience and training to my particular concerns?
- Can you describe your relationship with the Lord, and how it impacts your practice?
- What are your fees? Do you take my insurance? Do you offer a sliding-scale for payment? What are your billing practices: monthly, or at the time of service?
- How long will my sessions be? How frequently do you anticipate that I will need to be seen, and for how many weeks or months?
- What should I do if I am in need of an emergency appointment? What is the protocol for cancelling an appointment?

After working through the interview process, take adequate time to prayerfully and thoughtfully consider your decision based upon the information you obtained. If, after the first session or two, you are not growing more comfortable sharing and receiving guidance from your counselor, or do not feel that their expertise is fitting your needs, it may be a good idea to seek out other mental healthcare providers. Counseling can be a challenging process that requires expending considerable mental, emotional, physical, and spiritual effort. It is not unusual to experience heightened levels of stress, fatigue, anxiety, and internal pain as the root issues and wounds behind your concerns are uncovered and healed. Try to determine whether your discomfort is related to a personal disconnect with your counselor's style of communication and/or therapeutic methods, or if it is a necessary side effect of the work you are doing in the healing process.

When and How to End Counseling

Ultimately, you have the authority to determine when you will end a season of regular counseling or decrease the frequency of your sessions. Some issues may require a longer term of therapeutic support, while others may be effectively worked through in just a few sessions. Drawing from their range of experience with similar cases and their trained ability to assess your progress and level of wellness, your counselor will likely have beneficial perspective as to whether you are ready to decrease your frequency of sessions or conclude the counseling process. However, you are responsible to share with your counselor how you are feeling, thinking, and other signs that may indicate your improvement.

If you need any further guidance about receiving professional counseling, please email care@rivervalley.org or call River Valley Church at 952-997-2222.

Brighter Days Grief Center

www.brighterdaysgriefcenter.org/about-us

Brighter Days Grief Center is a newly established nonprofit organization serving individuals anticipating or enduring the death of a beloved family member. Their free programs are designed to address the financial, academic, and psychosocial aspects of grief. By partnering with other grief related organizations, they provide compassionate and tailored resources and programs that are specific to each family member. Additionally, they work tirelessly to bring awareness to schools, communities, and organizations to make sure families receive compassionate and appropriate support in all settings.
